BIO

James Mane is a stand-up comedian and podcast host born in American Samoa and raised in Aiea, Hawaii. A proud AAPI performer, his comedy blends sharp cultural observations with fearless storytelling about growing up in the islands and life in modern Hawaii.

Mane was featured in Forbes as one of “12 Rising AAPI Stand-Up Comedians To Watch.” He also made history as the first Samoan comedian to perform a featured stand-up set on North American television when he appeared on FNX’s First Nations Comedy Experience, which aired across the United States and Canada and is now streaming on Amazon Prime.

He co-starred in the Adult Swim hit series Decker, where he played the character Lanoi Arnold, the unofficial king of Hawaii.

Mane has performed alongside many of the biggest names in comedy including Dave Chappelle, Bert Kreischer, Ronny Chieng, Patton Oswalt, and Amy Schumer.
