BIO

James Mane is a stand-up comedian, actor, podcast host, and Hawaii producer for Don't Tell Comedy. Born in American Samoa and raised in Aiea, Hawaii, Mane brings a sharp and original point of view to the stage, blending smart island-style comedy with fearless storytelling about Samoan culture, local life, family, and the modern Hawaii experience.

Mane was featured in Forbes as one of "12 Rising AAPI Stand-Up Comedians To Watch" and made history as the first Samoan comedian to perform a featured stand-up set on North American television with his appearance on FNX's First Nations Comedy Experience, which aired across the United States and Canada and is now streaming on Amazon Prime.

He co-starred in the Adult Swim series Decker, playing Lanoi Arnold, the unofficial king of Hawaii. Mane has shared the stage with Dave Chappelle, Bert Kreischer, Ronny Chieng, Patton Oswalt, Wanda Sykes, and Amy Schumer.

Mane has performed at respected comedy venues across the country, including The World Famous Comedy Store in Hollywood, LA Comedy Club in Las Vegas, Helium Comedy Club in Portland, The Function Comedy Club in San Francisco, Nate Jackson's Super Funny Comedy Club in Tacoma, and Blue Note Hawaii. He has headlined Nate Jackson's Super Funny Comedy Club and sold out shows at Blue Note Hawaii and The Function Comedy Club in San Francisco.
